

As a lifelong resident of New Jersey and head of my household, I adamantly oppose any exemptions made to the current DO NOT LIST Program. Personally, I was receiving approximately 6-9 calls each and every night, including weekends, from telemarketers. That was absolutely unacceptable - at one point, I seriously considered cancelling my home phone service in an effort to stop the telemarketers from calling. Should any changes be made to the current DO NOT CALL Program, I will, once again, be looking towards cancelling my home phone service just to eliminate any telemarketers from calling. The FCC and the phone company will be one's to lose out when services are cancelled.
